Lord, how good it would be for us to remain here!

This is the expression of the Apostle Saint Peter at the Transfiguration of the Lord on Mount Tabor, and it reflects the human desire to perpetuate moments of spiritual consolation and closeness with God. This expression symbolizes the joy of prayer and adoration, but Jesus teaches that after contemplation comes the mission to serve and bear witness in everyday life.

Peter wanted to build shelters to remain on Tabor, seeking to avoid the cross and the difficulties of daily life. Faith is not a refuge to escape reality, but a force to transform it. But Jesus commands them to come down from the mountain, which means that after a personal encounter with Him, we must bring that love and light to our brothers and sisters, to our work, and to the difficulties of daily life.

The luminous cloud and the voice of the Father indicate that the priority is obedience to Jesus ("listen to him"), who often calls us to serve in the most unexpected or difficult places. The experience of Tabor prepares the disciples for the Passion. Authentic faith balances worship—adoring Jesus—with action and imitating his service, transforming our lives into a reflection of his glory.

Saint Peter's words are a call to enjoy God, but without neglecting our Christian commitment in the world, trusting that he accompanies us both on the mountain and in the valley.

Señor, ¡qué bueno sería quedarnos aquí!

Esta es la expresión del Apóstol San Pedro en la Transfiguración del Señor en el Monte Tabor, y refleja el deseo humano de perpetuar los momentos de consuelo espiritual y cercanía con Dios. Esta expresión simboliza la alegría de la oración y la adoración, pero Jesús enseña que tras la contemplación sigue la misión para servir y dar testimonio en la realidad cotidiana.

Pedro quería construir chozas para quedarse en el Tabor, buscando evitar la cruz y las dificultades de la vida diaria. La fe no es un refugio para escapar de la realidad, sino una fuerza para transformarla. Pero Jesús ordena bajar del monte, lo que significa que después de un encuentro personal con Él, debemos llevar ese amor y luz a nuestros hermanos, al trabajo y a las dificultades del día a día.

La nube luminosa y la voz del Padre indican que la prioridad es la obediencia a Jesús ("escúchenlo"), quien a menudo nos llama a servir en los lugares más inesperados o difíciles. La experiencia del Tabor prepara a los discípulos para la Pasión. La fe auténtica equilibra la adoración, adorar a Jesús con la acción e imitar su servicio, transformando nuestra vida en un reflejo de su gloria.

La frase de San Pedro es un llamado a disfrutar de Dios, pero sin dejar de asumir el compromiso cristiano en medio del mundo, confiando en que Él nos acompaña tanto en la montaña como en el valle.
